

Will the broadcast flag interfere with consumers ability to make copies of DTV content for their personal use, either on personal video recorders or removable media?

While I appreciate the concerns of the intellectual property community, their ubiquitous efforts to track user behavior and control copying and usage of digital content must encounter some limits.

I urge the FCC to reject digital flags. Hopefully, the intellectual property community will eventually stop fighting the digital technology revolution and will instead embrace innovative new business models.